There are many different styles for citing a resource, but they all include basically the same information. How do you tell which is a book, a chapter in a book, or a journal article?

Book (Chicago Style)

Author
Book Title
Place of Publication

Publisher
Publication Date

To find this book in McDermott Library, go to the Library's homepage and find the Library Catalog tab in the search area. You may search by Title, Author, or Keyword here.

Chapter or Essay in a Book (APA Style)

Author
Chapter or Essay Title
Publication Date
Place of Publication
Edition Number
“In” identifies the Source of the Chapter
Book Title
Publisher
Editors of the Book

Use the same method to search for this book. Search for the book rather than the essay / chapter title for best results.
Journal or Magazine Article (MLA Style)

To find this article, first search the journal's title, using the Journals tab.

Next, click the title of the journal and select a link that includes this article’s publication date from those listed in the View It section.

Now that you’re viewing the journal’s website or database that hosts the journal, you may find the article by searching its title, author, or browsing by year / volume.

For more information on Citation Style Manuals, RefWorks Citation Manager, finding resources in the library, or other library-related topics, stop by the Research Services Desk on the 2nd floor, click the Chat button on our website, or call (972) 883-2643.